ravages of the U. 53 off New d were displeasing to the gov- t but the incident was viewed ated. It was said that a con- of the practice would not be ted, as it would constitute a al blockade of American har-

tions with the entente allies are ar cut, less dangerous but per- more nagging. Sea power has them through the blockade, ioning of Holland and all Scan- a, the prohibition of imports in- to this country except under guarantee, the seizure and censorship of mails, and the imposition of the black list, virtually to destroy all foreign trade hostile to them. Constant belligerent encroachments on neutral rights have led President Wilson to say that neutrality is "intolerable." War has become worldwide, so unlimited as to national boundaries, that it is no longer the hostile army, but, the hostile state, men, women and children, with outposts all over the world, that is involved.

First and oldest of the entente allied restriction is the blockade, which our government has declared illegal because it is both ineffective and discriminatory in favor of Norway and Sweden in that it does not blockade the Baltic and because it attempts to block neutral ports contiguous to Germany, to which British goods are allowed to go. The case dates back to March 11, 1915 and the last note was the British refusal of April 24 last.

The rationing of Holland, Norway, Sweden and Denmark has been bitterly condemned in the blockade notes where it has been held to be absolutely unwarrantable interference with neutral trade directly between two neutral countries.

A not less "lawless practice" has been the entente allied censorship of mails, which has been called "vexatiously inquisitorial." Here again is an absolute conflict between neutral and belligerent rights. Neutrals have the right of inviolability of genuine correspondence; belligerents have the right to search mails for contraband. Obviously mails cannot be searched and inviolate at the same time. A reply is due from this government to the British and French note of October 15, which in itself was over four months delayed.

The British refusal of the American attitude as to the blacklist which was called an "arbitrary interference with neutral trade," has just come. The British claim it is merely municipal legislation to prevent their own subjects from dealing with firms aiding the enemy even if in neutral countries. The United States holds that in effect this is extending British control over into American affairs.

The prohibition of importation of raw materials from the British dominion into this country except under guarantee that they will not reach German firms is another galling restriction not so much because the right of embargo is disputed, as that in its administration the British embassy here decides finally what firms shall and what firms shall not be favored. This gives a control over American industries and a knowledge of American trade secrets that is resented.

To meet these trade restrictions is the retaliatory legislation passed by congress in the eleventh hour.

Beyond the war the President must decide America's attitude towards the peace conference. Will a place be demanded against the express desires of the entente? Undoubtedly will American interests be involved, notably in China and in the Pacific Islands taken from Germany.

The trade war, after the war offers most tangled problems. Great doubt is felt that it can go through because it is admittedly uneconomic and unreasoning in that the entente allied nations are competitive rather than co-ordinative and because free commercial intercourse will be essential to all. Nevertheless its approval by the Paris conference and its increasing agitation abroad makes preparation against it necessary. The Webb bill, now before congress, to permit operation among exporters, will be one of the first steps urged.

Most vital of all perhaps is President Wilson's advocacy of a league of nations against future wars. The British, French and German foreign secretaries have endorsed the plan in theory; what remains for this country is to work it out in practice.

Many other more local problems press for solution. Mexico is in a very serious plight. Officials are beginning to despair of Carranza yet no alternative is seen. The Nicaraguan treaty is being bitterly protested by the other Central American nations and offers a possible source of trouble. Conditions there and in San Domingo and Haiti are unsettled. Also the treaty for the purchase of the Danish West Indies for $5,000,000 is still unratified by Denmark.

BROTHERHOOD HEADS CONFER

Discuss Legislative Program They Will Support in Next Congress.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—On the eve of the opening tomorrow of the congressional investigation of railroad problems the heads of three of the great railroad employes brotherhoods held a conference here today with officials of the railway department of the American Federation of Labor. The brotherhood leaders said they had discussed a legislative program for the next session of congress.

Conferences with the federation representatives will be continued tomorrow and they may be followed by an announcement of the attitude of the brotherhoods toward the legislation proposed by President Wilson to supplement the Adamson law. The brotherhood officials here are Warren S. Stone of the Engineers, W. S. Carter of the Firemen and W. G. Lee of the Trainmen.

Representative Adamson has an agreement to see the President tomorrow and Major General Goethals, head of the eight-hour commission, expects to be called in a day or two. The President hopes to see his program enacted early in the session of congress so as to have the measures on the statute books before the eight hour law becomes effective.

MANY UPSETS IN FOOTBALL DOPE

Preliminay Games Gave No Sign of End-of-Seoson Form

TIGERS HUMBLED AGAIN

Brown Places Her Team Among Best in Nation By Decisively Defeating Harvard

New York, Nov. 19. — Eastern football teams cast form to the winds in several games Saturday, with the result that the closing days of the season find the gridiron situation badly complicated. Princeton, with the best eleven in several years, fell an easy victim to Yale, partly because of her own errors of omission and commission. Harvard, with a second string combination opposing Brown, was overwhelmed.

The outcome of the Yale-Princeton game was typical of the uncertainties of football as played Saturday. The Tigers, with a veteran team and a coaching system, advanced into second year, were routed by an eleven that has played erratically all season and is just mastering the fundamentals of Tad Jones' coaching methods. Without detracting from the efforts of the Blue, it can be said that Princeton was as much responsible for its defeat as was its rival.

Yale played hard but ragged football and the one outstanding feature of the Elis' game was the alertness of the players and their ability to take advantage of an opportune opening. The failure of Princeton to cover the kick-off at the opening of the second half gave the Blue a chance to regain the ball and score a field goal which, as it developed, would have been sufficient to win. The Tigers made sure their defeat, however, by later fumbling the ball while it was in their possession on the 20 yard line, making possible a touchdown.

Given the ball by their opponents twice on the 20 yard line, Yale was enabled quickly to convert the errors into scores, but at no other time was it able to threaten the Princeton goal line. The Tigers were woefully weak in offensive play.

With the material available the poor judgment displayed both in the offense and in the selection of the plays was surprising. With ordinary gridiron generalship the home eleven might have gone into the lead early in the game had proper plays been used preparatory to calling upon Tibbott for an attempted field goal.

While the Princeton story of the game was one of wasted opportunities, the reverse was true of Yale's play. The cleverness with which substitute quarterback LaRoche switched from one line of attack to another at critical moments was a big factor in the result.

Yale's plays, however, proved that much remains to be accomplished in the coming week if it is to repeat with a victory over Harvard. Princeton did not play nearly as strongly against the Elis as it did against the Crimson a week ago and Harvard, on the form displayed against the Tigers, will be a logical favorite next Saturday.

So far as it has any bearing on the coming contest with Yale the defeat of Harvard by Brown must be cast aside, since but two of the players who faced Princeton opened the contest against the Providence eleven. That the Crimson 'varsity might have been defeated by the splendid Brown machine is possible, but certainly the score would have been far less one sided.

Colgate proved that the form displayed in earlier games this fall was not due to any weakness of opponents by decisively defeating Syracuse with a charging and steady attack that even the heavy Orange forwards could not repel. Pennsylvania demonstrated a somewhat similar truth in her victory over Michigan, although the Wolverines fought back with commendable power.

Both the Army and Navy teams, which meet in their annual battle next Saturday closed their preliminary season with victories, but the Cadets again showed signs of the slump which has marred their recent work. The same can be said in a general way of Cornell's victory over the Massachusetts Aggies.

Dartmouth struck an unexpected snag in West Virginia, the southerners holding the Hanover eleven to a tie score, while Pittsburg found worthy foe in Carnegie Tech. Wesleyan ran away with Columbia and Williams did the same with Amherst.

BAD FIRE IN ROSCOE

Entire Business Section and Some Hotels of Village Wiped Out.

Roscoe, Nov. 19.—Fire destroyed the entire business section of this village early today with a loss estimated at $250,000. More than a dozen buildings and residences were burned, including the Roscoe National Bank, the Faubel House, the Beaverkill House and the local theatre. The village is one of the summer resorts of Sullivan county.

Thieves took advantage of the confusion during the fire and stole much valuable property. One woman was hurt by jumping from a window. The blaze was checked by the aid of fire companies from Liberty and Livingston Manor.

JOINT COMMISSION MUST END SESSION

PRESIDENT WILSON TIRES OF FRUITLESS DISCUSSION

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—Armed with President Wilson's complete approval of his course, Secretary Lane will return to Atlantic City tomorrow, determined to bring the sessions of the American Mexican commission to an early conclusion. He is still hopeful that an agreement can be reached, but it was indicated today in official circles that the joint conference is entering on its final phase, agreement or no agreement.

If the commissioners find it impossible to formulate a plan, the view taken here will be that the prospect of settling border disputes through diplomacy will be remote. Officials make no predictions as to what steps the Washington government might find it necessary to take in that event to insure the safety of border towns and ranches.

Secretary Lane is understood to have found President Wilson, secretary Lansing and Secretary Baker in full accord with him on every point when he laid before them last night in the three hour conference at the White House a review of the efforts the American commissioners had made to reach a settlement.

Mr. Lane said today that he was well pleased with the result of the White House conference but would not otherwise comment. It is an open secret that Louis Cabrera, Carranza minister of finance and president of the Mexican commission, has proved the stumbling block in the way of reaching an agreement. Commisioners Bonillas and Pani, it is said, have been ready to approve several different suggestions for co-operative action. Cabrera, however, held out for control of any joint operations by a Mexican military commander, a concession that the American commissioners did not feel warranted in making.

It is believed here that the American commissioners have now abandoned the effort to frame an agreement satisfactory to the Mexicans in every detail and will renew tomorrow their original suggestion; that each government patrol its own side of the line independently but with the understanding that American troops will pursue into Mexico on a hot trail any bandits who attack border towns. Coupled with that suggestion presumably was the statement that General Pershing's forces would be withdrawn gradually from Mexico and that no large force would be sent across the line again unless the de facto government permitted raiders to assemble in such force in Mexico that a strong force was necessary to prevent an attack.

In its present position, many officers told the expedition would be of no strategic value should general hostilities break out.

Official advices from the border today indicated that all of the six or seven Americans at Parral had made their escape. There has been much anxiety here because of persistent reports that Villa bandits had put many foreigners to death when they raided the town recently. The advices indicate that the Villa forces are not in actual possession of Parral or any of the other towns in that region which border reports have said they controlled.

YOUNG AVIATRIX SMASHES RECORD

Miss Ruth Law Flies 660 Miles Cross Country Without Stop

BEATS CARLSTROM MARK

Has Average Speed of 100 Miles Per Hour, Against Adverse Winds Part of Way

Binghamton, Nov. 19. — Attempting a non-stop flight from Chicago to New York, Miss Ruth Law, behind the wheel of a Curtiss biplane of the military scout type, shattered all American long distance aviation records for a single flight today, when she flew from Chicago to Hornell, N. Y., a distance of about 660 miles, bettering the record made by Victor Carlstrom on Nov. 2 by about 100 miles.

A delayed start is responsible for her failure to reach New York city said Miss Law, after her arrival at Binghamton this afternoon at 4:20 o'clock.

Three features of the flight stand out in bold relief against all others.

Previous to today's flight Miss Law had never before made a single flight longer than 25 miles.

Her machine, a small biplane, had a spread of wings les than half that of the one Carlstrom used. It was not specially designed for the occasion.

Miss Law covered a distance of about 785 miles in 6 hours and 50 minutes, time being deducted for the descent at Hornell. The first 662 miles, the distance by rail between Chicago and Hornell, was made without a stop.

Miss Law left Chicago at 8:25 a. m. eastern time. She had anticipated starting before that hour, but the manufacturers of the carburetor of the engine believed the hot water jacket of the engine should be removed. In the time thus lost the aviatrix could have covered the remaining distance to New York.

A strong wind blew toward the east. Aided by this she kept up an average speed of 100 miles an hour at an altitude of about 6,000 feet. During the last 200 miles, before the stop at Hornell, a sharp cross wind blew, with the result that her gasoline tank was soon emptied. She glided two miles into Hornell at 2:07.

After replenishing her supply of gasoline she flew the remaining 117 miles to Binghamton without mishap, darkness overtook her and she was forced to descend. She will continue on to New York tomorrow morning. Miss Law's experience has been gained in short exhibition flights, and while the flight was held under the auspices of the Aero Club of America, it received but little advance advertising.

Hornell, Nov. 19. — Ruth Law, on her flight from Chicago to New York, made her first landing in this city at 2:07 this afternoon, having covered a distance of about 635 miles overland, or 666 by rail, and beating the record of Victor Carlstrom, who landed at Erie, Pa., by about 150 miles. After taking on a supply of gasoline and oil, the young woman resumed her flight at 3:03.

AMERICAN KILLED BY BANDITS AT PARRAL

FOREIGNERS MURDERED BY HUNDREDS BY VILLA FOLLOWERS

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 19.—An unidentified American was killed when a Villa band took Jiminez and four Americans were seen under a guard of bandits at Parral during Villa's occupation of that town, according to reports believed by federal agents to be authentic, brought to the border by refugees.

Refugees further state that the district between Parral and Jiminez has been cleared by Villa followers of more than 200 Chinese.

The American killed at Jiminez was described as about 50 years old. He was murdered, said the refugees, in the Jiminez hotel and his body lay for some time in front of the building, when after being robbed of clothing and valuables, it was placed on a bonfire.

The same refugees, who claim to have been witnesses of the outrages, also say that two Mexican women who had married Chinese, and their five children, were found and thrown alive into the fire and cremated in sight of the crowd. The bodies of seven murdered Chinese, according to the same authority were seen in the streets of the town.

Two Mexicans who escaped from Parral affirm that they saw four Americans there under a Villa guard. They said these men had lived in the town, adding that they heard that the Americans working at the Alvarado mines got away. Another report to the border was to the effect that the bodies of 35 gypsies of both sexes were seen on the roadside near Parral, murdered and robbed by Villa bandits. The gypsies were believed to be of Syrian origin.

The Chinese are called the heaviest sufferers. The fact that none are to be seen in the district in which they formerly did a large merchant business, is taken as proof that all, numbering over 200, met the fate of the Chinese caught at Parral and Jiminez.

TIDAL WAVE AT MARSEILLES

Culmination of Extraordinary Weather Conditions in France.

Paris, France, Nov. 19. — Extraordinary weather conditions prevailing in France in the last 48 hours culminated yesterday in a tidal wave in the gulf of Marseilles, in which many vessels foundered and disastrous gales on the southwest coast of the Atlantic ocean.

According to M. Angot, director of the weather bureau, fluctuations of the barometer yesterday beat all the records for 60 years for quick changes. From 721 mm., which already was 39 below normal, it dropped 44 mm. in 36 hours.

Snow fell heavily along the British battle front and there were heavy rains and high winds in Paris and in other parts of France.

At Marseilles all the cabins on Catalan beach were carried away and the high waves inundated Corinche road, stopping the street cars.

COMMITTEE TO STUDY RAILROAD PROBLEMS

COVERING BROAD SUBJECT OF GOVERNMENT CONTROL

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—Congressional investigation into the broad question of government regulation and control of railroads and other common carriers, suggested by President Wilson in his opening address to the last session begins here tomorrow before a joint committee of senators and representatives.

Although the investigation was authorized before the threatened strike by the four great brotherhoods, the investigation will go into the questions which came up at that time, such as regulation of wages by the interstate commerce commission and legislation to prevent a similar situation.

Questions which the investigators will take up go to the heart of the transportation problem and the inquiry probably will have a potent influence in congress on the subject of government and ownership.

At the hearings it is expected that all the leading railroads, telegraph, telephone and wireless concerns, and express companies as well as economists, leaders of labor and agriculture, shippers and bankers will be heard.

The committee is required to report to congress by January 8, and an effort may be made to put through legislation before the session ends on March 4, after which the administration will not have its present majority in the house.

The resolution for the investigation came at the conclusion of many months of effort on the part of railroads and others interested in questions affecting them, to have a comprehensive inquiry into all phases of government control.

President Wilson in his address to congress in December, 1915, called attention to the need in this language:

"The transportation problem is an exceedingly serious and pressing one in this country. There has from time to time of late been reason to fear that our railroads would not much longer be able to cope with it successfully, as at present equipped and coordinated. I suggest that it would be wise to provide for a commission of inquiry to ascertain by a thorough canvass of the whole question whether our laws as at present framed and administered are as serviceable as they might be in the solution of the problem.

"It is obviously a problem that lies at the very foundation of our efficiency as a people. Such an inquiry ought to draw out every circumstance and opinion worth considering, and we need to know all sides of the matter if we mean to do anything in the field of federal legislation. No one, I am sure, would wish to take any backward step. The regulation of the railways of the country by federal commission has had admirable results and has fully justified the hopes and expectations of those by whom the policy of regulation was originally proposed. The question is not what should we undo? It is whether there is anything else we can do that would supply us with effective means, in the very process of regulation, for bettering the conditions under which the railroads are operated and for making them more useful servants of the country as a whole. It seems to me that it might be the part of wisdom, therefore, before further legislation in this field is attempted, to look at the whole problem of co-ordination and efficiency in the full light of a fresh assessment of circumstances and opinion as a guide to dealing with the several parts of it."

Six months later the joint resolution was adopted. It provides for the appointment of five senators and representatives "to investigate the subject of government control and regulation of interstate and foreign transportation, the efficiency of the existing system in protecting the rights of shippers and carriers and in promoting the public interest, the incorporation or control of the incorporation of carriers, and all proposed changes in the organization of the Interstate Commerce commission and the act to regulate commerce, also the subject of government ownership of public utilities, such as telegraph, wireless, cable, telephone, express companies, and railroads engaged in interstate and foreign commerce and report as to the wisdom or feasibility of government ownership of such utilities and as to the comparative worth and efficiency of government regulation and control as compared with government ownership and operation." Power was given the committee to sit during a recess of congress and to call on government witnesses and to call on government agencies for assistance. The sum of $24,000 was appropriated for expenses

MONASTIR ONCE MORE IN HANDS OF THE SERBS

Germans and Bulgars Evacuate Captured Serb City

TO ESTABLISH CAPITAL

On Transylvanian Front Austro-German Forces Continue to Make Steady Advance

After having been for months men without a country the Serbians are again to establish their capital on native soil. Monastir, in southern Serbia, for which the entente forces have been struggling since the advance from their base at Saloniki began, has been evacuated by the German and Bulgarian forces and occupied by the French and a considerable number of Serbs.

The French and Serbians had captured the crest of hills partially surrounding the valley towns, the Germans found their positions untenable and withdrew, according to Berlin, to a new position to the north of Monastir. Unofficial advices from Saloniki say that a temporary capital of Serbia will be immediately established at Monastir. With the re-occupation of Monastir the railway line from the entente allied base at Saloniki is now in entente hands.

To the east and southeast of Monastir the French and Serbian troops continue to make gains in the Cerna river region against the Teutonic allies, having captured several other towns in this region.

On the Transylvanian front the Austro-German armies at almost all points continue to make progress against the Russian or Rumanian forces. The latest reports from Berlin say the Teutonic allies have forced the passes leading to the Wallachian plain of Rumania and on the Danube front near the junction of Hungary, Serbia and Rumania have reached the Orsova-Craiova railroad. Bucharest reports a Rumanian advance in the region of Dragostavele.

From November 1 to November 18, the Austro-Germans are said to have made prisoners of 189 officers and 19,338 men and to have captured 26 guns, 72 machine guns and 17 ammunition cars.

Lively infantry and artillery actions are taking place in the Dobrudja region near Silistria, on the eastern bank of the Danube about 40 miles southwest of the Tchrenavoda-Constanza railway.

Bad weather is hampering the operations on the western front in France, but the British nevertheless have taken 20 additional German officers and 271 men prisoners in the Ancre region, making their aggregate of prisoners since the 13th of November 6,962.

Berlin says that in Saturday's fighting which was over a front of 7½ miles the British met with a reverse except for slight gains southwest of Sere and near Grandcourt. A French attack south of Sailly-Saillisel met with a similar repulse.

In an attack by the Austrians in the Adige valley and upper But regions in the latter of which the Austrians and Italians fought hand to hand, the Italians were victorious, according to the Rome war office.

SERIOUS WRECK IN MEXICO

Engineer Said to Have Driven His Train Too Fast on Dangerous Road.

Laredo, Tex s, Nov. 19. — One hundred and fifty-nine persons were killed and many more or less seriously injured in a railroad wreck on the Inter-Oceanic line to Vera Cruz, between Dehesa and San Miguel near Jalapa on Nov. 12, according to reliable reports received here today.

The wreck is said to have been due to the engineer running at too high a rate of speed over a dangerous part of the road.

According to this information all but one of the five cars of the train left the track and rolled over a cliff. The passengers were literally ground to pieces. No Americans were among the dead, it was said.

Among the killed are said to have been a widow and her seven small children.

Teutons Now in Wallachia.

Berlin, Germany, Nov. 19, by wireless to Sayville. — German and Austro-Hungarian troops yesterday, despite a tenacious Rumanian resistance, forced their way through the narrow mountain passes on the Transylvanian front into the Wallachian plain, according to the official statement issued by the German headquarters staff today. Teuton troops pushing behind the Rumanians in southwestern Rumania have reached the Orsova-Craiova railroad. Since Nov. 1 the Austrians and Germans on this front, it is stated, have taken prisoner more than 19,000 Rumanians and have captured 26 cannon.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

My car runs well and the compression is fair. I can throttle down to six miles on high gear without engine bucking, but there has been a tap in the front cylinder for about a year. It is not a push rod tap, for I can scarcely put a piece of paper in the clearance. Could it be a warped valve or valve stem? Have had new pistons and rings put in. All the bearings seem to be a close fit and tight. Can you give me some information?

It is quite likely that the push rod guide is badly worn, with the result that every time the cam strikes the lower end of the push rod the latter is slipped against the side of the guide. If this is so a new guide, and possibly a new push rod, will be required. The valve may be slightly warped, or the valve stem bent, or possibly there is some carbon on the seat of the valve, although if this is the case the tap should disappear after the valves are ground. Whether the trouble is in the valve mechanism or not may be determined by shifting the valves, push rods and guides to one of the rear cylinders. The tap might also be caused by a loose cam shaft bearing or bent cam shaft.

There is also the possibility that the sound is misleading. It may seem to come from the valve mechanism when in reality it is some other part. If the trouble is still undiscovered after you have followed suggestions given you should inspect every detail of front of motor carefully, paying special attention to the possibility of obscure troubles. The connecting rod may be bent, the wrist pin may not be at right angles to the cylinder walls, the crank shaft may be bent, the fan bracket may be loose, and there is a host of troubles of similar character that vary with each design of engine, but which you should have no trouble in looking for with the motor before you.

How can I prevent grease from getting into the brake drums? My car has a full floating axle, and one brake drum is always full of grease. Have had new felts put in several times without benefit.

Possibly you are operating with too much grease in the rear axle. Have just enough to provide for the thorough lubrication of the ring gear—that is, the gear should dip two or three inches into the grease. We can offer no further help without knowing the make and model of the car.

If I dismantle a storage battery and leave the plates exposed to the air will it injure the plates or would it be better to let them soak in soft, clear water?

One set of plates is stored dry and the other is left in the electrolyte. You should not attempt to take your battery apart, because skill and special tools are required. This work is even beyond the ordinary garage man; only a man who has had experience in a battery service station is qualified to dismantle a battery. If you are not going to use your battery for some time you should place it in the hands of some garage man and have him charge it as often as required.

Do the power strokes in a six cylinder motor overlap enough to keep it in motion if the flywheel were removed?

Yes, assuming, of course, that all cylinders are working properly. The purpose of the flywheel is to produce a fairly uniform angular crank shaft velocity. If there were no flywheel, directly after each explosion the crank shaft would be speeded up considerably, and the speed would then drop rapidly until the next explosion occurred. A flywheel reduces these variations in speed. When the explosion occurs the force acting on the piston is spent largely in speeding up the flywheel, but as the latter has a large mass compared with the crank shaft the increase is comparatively slight; but, on the other hand, it drops very little in speed as the piston progresses on its stroke. In other words, the flywheel is a sort of a mechanical storage battery which alternately gives and receives energy.

Why would not a direct copper return from the present spark plugs give a hotter, better spark with the same equipment than the present circuitous indirect route through engine and parts, being a better conductor and a shorter route?

There are several good reasons why not. In the first place, the route through the engine and frame probably offers considerably less resistance than the copper conduit, because, although its specific resistance is greater, the fact that the section of iron through which the current flows is enormously larger than the copper greatly overshadows the advantage the copper has in the matter of resistance.

However, even assuming that the iron offered a much greater resistance than the copper wire, there would still be no reason for employing a copper return, because the resistance of the conductor is negligible alongside of the resistance at the spark gap. In other words, if you doubled the resistance of both wires this would add such an infinitesimal amount to the total resistance that the difference in the spark could not be noticed.

By what test can I determine whether there is a current passing to my batteries without the aid of an ammeter, and when the ammeter is not working how can I determine whether the trouble is in the ammeter or whether it is because there is no current passing through it or whether the generater is doing its work or not?

Disconnect one of the wires and make and break the circuit with it; if a spark is noticed on the break current is flowing. This test may be used on all sorts of electrical circuits, even on a single worn out dry cell. If the system has a cut-out and it works properly current is flowing.

You can determine whether current is flowing or not by the method just described. If current is flowing the trouble must be in the ammeter. If the defect is internal the instrument must be returned to the manufacturer, but sometimes the trouble is simply a broken or loose connection or a stuck hand. In the latter case tapping the instrument may cure the defect.

Can you tell me if there is any injurious effect of gum camphor on a motor?

Very little is known on this subject, but the general opinion is that it does not give any increase in power and, further, has a tendency to carbonize the motor.

My car has developed a grinding noise that sounds a little like engaging gears without the clutch pedal being depressed. I have had the mechanic at the service station work on it after I had tried, but gained nothing. The noise is only made while running at eight and seventeen miles per hour. There is no noise when the engine is idling, as far as I can learn. I have adjusted the starter chain many times and am satisfied that the trouble is not there. Could it be a timing gear loose or the clutch shaft bearing worn?

It seems likely that the spigot bushing in the gear box is worn. If this is true a new gear and shaft in which the bushing is mounted must be obtained. There is also the possibility that the noise is carried forward from the rear end. The axle shafts may be loose or a wheel may be a little bit wabbly.

When running at the rate of about eighteen or nineteen miles an hour the transmission of my car makes a grinding noise as though it does not mesh correctly, but when running below or over that speed the noise stops. Can you tell me what causes this?

See that all the gear set bearings are tight; this may be determined by grasping the shafts in the hand and shaking them. Be sure that there is plenty of grease in the gear box. Finally, if you find nothing out of order in the gear box, look elsewhere, because the sound may travel from one part to another.

Will you please explain the difference between single, dual, two spark, double and duplex ignition?

Single ignition means that there is but one source of current supply, either dry cells, storage battery or magneto. Dual ignition embodies two current sources, such as magneto and dry cells, but only one set of spark plugs. Two spark ignition means that there are two spark plugs, operating simultaneously in each cylinder. Double ignition consists of two entirely independent ignition sets so that the complete removal of one would not interfere with the operation of the other. The commonest example is the high tension magneto and a battery ignition outfit, each supplying its own set of plugs. Two magnetos or two battery ignition systems with individual sources of energy would also come within the definition. Duplex ignition is a special form of dual; it comprises a magneto for running, with a battery as an aid just for starting. It is designed especially for very heavy automobiles and marine motors where the cranking speed is too slow for the generation of a spark by the magneto. This battery system is not intended for continuous operation.

Can you give me a recipe for making rim paint to keep the tires from sticking to them?

Paint the rims with a paste made by mixing graphite with gasoline.

What is the maximum pressure in cylinders, compression sixty-five pounds? What per cent would we gain if we doubled the compression without any increase in gas or mixture?

Undoubtedly you mean the maximum explosion pressure, which might be as much as 450 pounds, although this would vary with conditions. Doubling the compression pressure would also approximately double the explosion pressure. Your question is a purely academic one, as you must realize that in actual practice doubling the compression would cause preignition. In other words, before the compression had reached its maximum the intense heat generated by the high pressure would be sufficient to precipitate combustion. Thus this compression could not be used unless the motor was supplied with a fuel injector instead of a carburetor, in which case the combustion could not start until the fuel was brought into contact with the air.

A Curious Herb.

In New Caledonia there is a herb which has the rare property of revealing one's secrets. It is known as the Datura stramonium and has white flowers and rough berries full of dark grains. They are treated of in the "Annals of Hygiene and Colonial Medicine." A person who has swallowed the tea made of this herb will after falling asleep tell where his money is hidden and will also arise and go direct to where his treasure is concealed. Robbers often use this tea as knockout drops with which to rob their victims.

Its Advantages.

Scene—Train stopping at small station. Irritable Old Gentleman—What on earth do they stop at a station like this for? Objectionable Passenger (alighting)—To allow me to get out. Irritable Old Gentleman—Ah! I see it has its advantages then.

PAINS IN SIDE AND BACK

How Mrs. Kelly Suffered and How She was Cured.

Burlington, Wis.—"I was very irregular, and had pains in my side and back, but after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets and using two bottles of the Sanative Wash I am fully convinced that I am entirely cured of these troubles, and feel better all over. I know your remedies have done me worlds of good and I hope every suffering woman will give them a trial."—Mrs. ANNA KELLY, 710 Chestnut Street, Burlington, Wis.

The many convincing testimonials constantly published in the newspapers ought to be proof enough to women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the medicine they need.

This good old root and herb remedy has proved unequalled for these dreadful ills; it contains what is needed to restore woman's health and strength.

If there is any peculiarity in your case requiring special advice, write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for free advice.

Fishskin Tartars.

The skin of the fish does not suggest itself as a suitable material for the making of clothes, yet it is used for this purpose by a tribe of Tartars in Manchuria. They inhabit the banks of the Peony river and live by fishing and hunting. During the past 100 years they have become nearly extinct owing to the invasion of their domain by agricultural Chinese. They are known as Fishskin Tartars. The fish they use is the tamara, a species of salmon. Both the flesh and the skin of the fish are supposed to possess wonderful heat giving properties.

An Elaborate System.

THINGS THAT NEVER HAPPEN

MUSTEROLE—QUICK RELIEF! NO BLISTER!

It Soothes and Relieves Like a Mustard Plaster Without the Burn or Sting

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with the oil of mustard. It does all the work of the old-fashioned mustard plaster—does it better and does not blister. You do not have to bother with a cloth. You simply rub it on—and usually the pain is gone!

Many doctors and nurses use Musterole and recommend it to their patients. They will gladly tell you what relief it gives from sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia).

25c and 50c jars; hospital size $2.50.

IN OUR great-great-grandfathers' time many New England families had a cask of rum in the cellar.

It was freely offered to guests (except children) and freely partaken of, even as coffee is today.

This old-time custom gradually passed out of existence, for our forefathers recognized it was harmful.

Another old-time custom—coffee drinking—is slowly passing in the same fashion and for the same reason.

The abandonment of coffee drinking is made easy nowadays by the use of Instant Postum, the pure cereal beverage with the coffee-like taste.

Unlike coffee, this purely American table drink contains no "caffeine" or other harmful substance.

Postum is now used daily in tens of thousands of the best of American homes where reason rules and health is valued

THE NEWS IN HOBART.

Union Services in the Churches Beginning the First Sunday in December.

Hobart, Nov. 19. — At a recent meeting of the village pastors it was arranged for union Sunday evening services for the winter beginning with the first Sunday in December when the service will be held in the Methodist church. The second will be held in the Presbyterian church and the third in the Episcopal church. The services will alternate in this way and each pastor will preach in his own pulpit.

STYLE TIPS.

Pointers About Materials And Lines For This Season.

Color and texture are richer and more extravagant than ever, and advance materials show that this year will be as splendid a one, so far as fashions are concerned, as last. Velvets, panne velvets and plushes there will be, and in silks brocaded Venetian effects will be luxuriantly used.

Accessories are as splendid, as ornate, as are materials. Belt clasps, muff chains, bags of every kind and all the other things which come last in the choosing of a costume, but almost first in the effect will be heavily ornamented with jeweled patterns.

This splendor and richness are found in every kind of garment, frock, evening gown, street clothes and evening wraps. Three uses of the various new materials were shown recently in three designs—an afternoon frock, street suit and evening coat. The first one of the three was of taupe voile and plush cloth, the voile woven into the stripes of plush. It was an afternoon gown having the waist fastening below the shoulder line with one plush button. The underblouse was of taupe voile, a combination of plush and voile. A band of plush of the same color turned up around the hips, and the skirt was arranged with the stripe running in various directions.

The suit was made of panne velvet with a long pile, mouse colored, and having a waistcoat and undercuffs of sealskin. The coat skirt had three godets.

Neither these materials nor these designs would seem to bear out the positive statements made by people that know that the slim silhouette is to be the only silhouette this winter. Perhaps the slimness is not to commence until a bit later, and perhaps this is going to be such a tolerant year as one particularly loves, a year in which one may have the sort of silhouette bestowed by nature and still be in style.

This tendency toward elaboration and near extravagance brings in quantities of embroidery again and many straight, full dresses and long basque blouses which lend themselves well to this kind of trimming. There are many little oddities, too, such as small mantles to go with the dresses and an erratic line to the skirt, making it shorter in front than in the back, to better show the rippling folds of bright colored embroideries and decoration.

Of course this extravagance will not be taken up at once, nor will all women care to adopt it at all, but it will be what is most commonly known as correct.

The colors, both of the embroideries and of the basic materials, have a glory of their own, being old gold, orange, green, deep and rich and full. Chinese and gold embroideries will be generally used.

Especially in evening gowns will the Venetian touch be given, by skirts short in front and having a little square cut train in the back or by the full skirts, with panels training on each side.

They Save Their Shoes.

It is the ambition of almost every Haitian to possess a black suit for special occasions. If he is a private citizen without hope of political preference or place, he is content with a coat cut in sack effect. If he pretends to fashion he likely wears a long cutaway. If he happens to be a general, or a member of congress, or an ex-member, or a minister, or ex-minister, he affects the extreme frock or Prince Albert, and the heavier and thicker the cloth the happier the wearer, though he swelter in his raiment. It is also the ambition of every Haitian to have a pair of shoes for Sundays and funerals at least, as their possession raises him considerably in the social scale. If caught out with shoes on during a rain the owner usually takes them off, puts them carefully under his jacket and finishes the journey barefooted.—Argonaut.

Not In Good Form.

A Chicago woman who had received a legal summons to appear in a certain court at a certain period was much put out thereby. In explaining the matter to a friend, she said:

"I have certainly received the citation, but I shall not appear—could not, in fact. Not only am I not socially acquainted with Judge Jones, but the whole tone of his communication is so impossible that I absolutely refuse to know him."—New York Times.

Where the Ark Rested.

We struggled painfully through the mud and at sunrise on the fourth day came in sight of Mount Ararat from the hilltop above Erivan. A more imposing sight I never saw than this huge snow clad hump, with its attendant peaked gendarme at its side. Though the ranges on each side of it are 8,000 feet high, it seems to rise alone from the plain and looms so large as to absolutely annihilate the great level plain, thirty miles across, which separates you from it. Heavy snowstorms had ranged over it for weeks, and the snow was lying to within 6,000 feet of sea level. The summit is represented in the latest surveys to be nearly 20,000 feet above the sea, so there were 14,000 feet of snow lying on it, and the shining mass seemed to rise and soar into the blue sky from beneath our very feet.—Professor Conybeare in New Armenia.

A Brush For the Laundry.

A great deal of wear on clothes can be saved by the use of a small hand brush. Instead of rubbing the clothes on the washboard, lay the soiled spot on the board, rub well with soap and scrub with the brush. This method is easier on the hands as well as on the clothes.

DAYS AFTER THE WAR.

The war in Europe may or may not be nearly over—all citizens of the United States and most of those of the larger brotherhood of the world sincerely hope that it is and that ere long the contending armies will beat their swords into plow shares, even if the further biblical prediction that men shall learn war no more is not entirely fulfilled.

In fact this latter half of the prediction is not likely ever fully to come to pass, since it implies a vast communistic brotherhood wherein each shall esteem his own not higher than his neighbor's, and shall in the fullest sense live up to the injunction of the decalogue against the sin of covetousness. When the war now going on is over, there will still be warfare, but it will be of an industrial nature, and each country will strive to possess for itself the markets of the world.

For this reason it may be well that in our struggle to coin riches directly from the struggle going on abroad the United States has perhaps been remiss in not securing for itself firm foothold in the markets of other noncombatant nations to which at a date probably not more than a year off, all the fighting powers will wish to sell, and to sell cheaply. To gain present riches is naturally a thing which the heart is set upon; but if in the doing only today is remembered, and we take no thought of preparation for tomorrow, we may be in a sad state at the war's end. There are hundreds of thousands of men in the United States who will be thrown out of very lucrative employment when peace is proclaimed; and if there is nothing for them to do there will certainly be a time of suffering, of discontent, and perhaps of national peril. The time to prepare is now.

TEN DAYS TO THANKSGIVING.

After much wondering as to when the Thanksgiving proclamation was to be given out, the belated announcement was made on Saturday last by both president and governor. And the date, as everybody expected, after so long delay, is for the thirtieth of the present month—just as late as it could be on a Thursday in November and later than in a goodly number of years to come it will be again.

It is a quite general opinion that both executives erred in waiting so long with the announcement. It has been customary to send it forth early in November, and there is perhaps no recent record of so late a date of issue as that of the present year. It cannot fairly be assumed that the election had anything to do with it, either at Albany or Washington. In fact, I should not have had, since approximately one half the people of state and country would have believed that they had reason for thanksgiving in either event; and moreover Thanksgiving is not a political issue. Also there is no reason to think that this was at all the reason for delay.

But at any rate the looked-for announcement is made. Ten mornings more and the holiday will be with us, and in the afternoon the best part of it will "be in our midst."

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS

No Western Naval Academy.

One naval academy is enough, thinks the Army and Navy Journal, which points out some of the objections to the proposal of a new academy on the Pacific coast. What naval officers think about it will be made public when congress meets, in response to the resolution of Senator Fielding at the last session calling for information. That in general they are opposed is the belief of the Army and Navy Journal, which cites some of them as saying that it would breed sectionalism and a divided spirit in the navy; one went so far as to say that it would make Mason and Dixon's line run north and south instead of east and west. This may be an extreme view, but the advantage of unity is obvious, and since a naval academy cannot well be located in Kansas or Nebraska, the Atlantic coast must serve. It is inconvenient for cadets from the far West, but after all this is not the prime consideration.—[Springfield Republican.

Outside the Breastworks.

Irrespective of partisanship, the country has reason to be thankful that among those who fell outside the breastworks were Congressman Tavenner of Illinois, who franked a Henry Ford speech as a campaign document at a cost to the people of several hundred thousand dollars, Frank Buchanan of the same state, of German propaganda notoriety, and Roberts of Massachusetts, the only representative from that state who supported the cowardly McLemore resolution.—[Providence Journal.

Peace by Force.

The United States has profited by this war in a material sense but it has impoverished other neutral countries that could not finance their own trade and industries and extend credit to the belligerents. It is intolerable that war should inflict such losses and suffering on Latin-American republics and other innocent neutrals. As the British secretary of foreign affairs has said neutrals should prepare to prevent war in the future.—[Journal of Commerce.

DAY OF THANKSGIVING

Messages of President and Governor Fixing Date of Annual Festival.

On Friday last President Wilson and Governor Whitman issued their annual Thanksgiving proclamations, the full text of which is as follows.

By the President.

It has long been the custom of our people to turn in the fruitful autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for His many blessings and mercies to us and the nation.

The year that has elapsed since we last observed our day of thanksgiving has been rich in blessings to us as a people, but the whole face of the world has been darkened by war. In the midst of our peace and happiness, our thoughts dwell with painful disquiet upon the struggles and sufferings of the nations at war, and of the peoples upon whom war has brought disaster without choice or possibility of escape on their part. We cannot think of our own happiness without thinking of their pitiful distress.

Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, do appoint Thursday, the thirtieth of November as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer and urge and advise the people to resort to their several places of worship on that day to render thanks to Almighty God for the blessings of peace and unbroken prosperity, which he has bestowed upon our beloved country in such unstinted measure.

And I also urge and suggest our duty, in this, our day of peace and abundance, to think in deep sympathy of the stricken people of the world upon whom the curse and terror of war has so pitilessly fallen and to contribute out of our abundant means to the relief of their sufferings.

Our people could in no better way show their real attitude towards the present struggles of the nations than by contributing out of their abundance to the relief of the suffering which war has brought in its train.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this seventeenth day of November, in the year of our Lord, 1916, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred forty-first.

(Signed) WOODROW WILSON,
By the President.
Robert Lansing, sec. of state.

By the Governor.

Goodness and wisdom are the attributes of God, and kindness and liberality of a happy and contented people, who are ever mindful of Him who controls their every thought and action, who depend upon him for guidance, and praise Him for the blessings which they bestow.

It is fitting that the people of this state should give thanks to Him from whom cometh "every good and every perfect gift."

Now, therefore, I, Charles S. Whitman, governor of the state of New York, do hereby proclaim Thursday, the 30th day of November, as Thanksgiving day.

As has been our time honored custom, let us on that day unite in praise of Almighty God. May our people blest with plenty themselves, remember on that day those who are less fortunate in our communities, extending to them care and generous attention.

CHARLES S. WHITMAN.

TO PROBE CITY SITUATION.

Wicks Committee to Commence Hearings In New York.

Albany, Nov. 19.—Following a conference in New York city tomorrow between members of the Wicks' Investigating committee, state officials, Judge Ward, counsel, and others, the first hearing in a probe in the milk distribution of the metropolis will be held in the rooms of the Merchants' association of New York city Tuesday. While there has been no statement as to the contemplative procedure of the committee in New York, it is expected that at the very outset, representatives of the big milk concerns will be called. A sergeant-at-arms employed by the committee has been busy serving subpoenas in New York for several days. It is expected that the hearings will consume at least a month.

At a hearing last week in Middletown, the following recommendations were made to the Wicks committee:

Repeal of the law prohibiting the shipment of skim milk into New York.

Imposing a tax of at least $5 on all dogs in the state, having them registered in the county clerk's office and wear collars.

Placing the age at which veal calves may be shipped for food at 10 days, instead of four weeks.

Providing a more equitable plan for milk testing.

The compulsory cooling of all milk by the immersion of cans in ice water.

Building and Loan Directors Feast.

Eleven of the directors of the Oneonta Building and Loan association assembled at 2 p. m. yesterday at the camp of B. E. Swart, one of their number, on Goodyear lake and were his guests at a dinner, which by all was heartily enjoyed. The menu included broiled venison in abundance, [illegible] baked potatoes, mince pie and coffee, and to it all did ample justice.

The dinner was a notable one, in that it was the only occasion in the 25 years that have passed since the association was organized on which as a body they have dined together. The success of yesterday's gathering, however, was so notable that not improbably it will be the first only of a series of such gatherings.

As matter of record it may be stated that those present were Col. Walter Scott, Squire B. Gardner, T. W. Stevens, A. B. Tobey, L. L. Gardner, A. J. Bush, W. L. Loder, [illegible] Palmer, L. B. Lannon, C. L. [illegible] and B. E. Swart. The three first named gentlemen were members of the [illegible] board of directors and have [illegible] the board ever since.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Gas in the Stomach.

Pain and a sense of fullness and suffocation are frequently due to the presence of accumulated gas, which has resulted from imperfect digestion of food. The symptoms, as a rule, do not cause distress until an hour or two after having eaten a meal. A quick and ready remedy for this condition is found in sodium bicarbonate. One teaspoonful of the powder placed in a tumbler and boiling water poured over it till the tumbler with the water and sipped while hot until all of the solution is taken brings about speedy belching and relief from the pain. If one is frequently annoyed by such attacks a laxative medicine should be taken every morning upon rising. A seidlitz powder is an excellent laxative, when there is a tendency to gas formation, or the citrate of magnesia.

Many a Man Wants Just This Sort of Shoe

A stylish, practical, good looking shoe that is in every way as good as it looks.

None of your dry, brittle leathers, oiled up and dressed up—good in the window and bad on the foot. Good leather is scarce—price is about double. If you buy haphazard you are likely to get wax and finish in place of life in the leather. That is why it will pay you to step into our store—to have our house behind your shoes. Here is a house that can't afford to fool anybody, or disappoint its customers just because it happens to be a bad year for good leather.

THE HOUSE OF GOOD SHOES 178 MAIN STREET

ONE thing stands out above all others at this store and that one thing is newness. Most stores play the game of dress on lines too conservative to satisfy the men of today. They never venture very far off the staple colorings and "oldish" models.

We believe every new season should have its new styles and our rule never to carry a garment over from season to season enables us to fill our store with newness.

If this newness means anything to you why not come in and glance over it. In the role of a looker you will be treated with the same courtesy as is extended to a buyer.

—The young ladies of the Chionian society, Oneonta State Normal school, held a candy sale Saturday at Brown & Turner's store. The net receipts were about $28.

—Miss Padwell, a student at the Normal school, state evangelist of the Young People's branch of the W. C. T. U., spoke at the Salvation Army hall last evening and her remarks were appreciated by all.

—Dr. Austin Griffin remains in about the same condition at the Fox Memorial hospital, where he recently underwent an operation. He passed a comfortable day yesterday and is believed to be recovering strength since the operation.

—The team of A. H. Cope, the Lower Chestnut street merchant, took a lively spin of their own accord Saturday afternoon in the vicinity of the store, doing little damage however and stopping at the side of the store with the wagon upright and none of the goods thereon upset.

—M. J. Nugent reports to The Star to state, which it does gladly, that the track work at Esperance and Worcester has not caused the delay of west bound D. & H. trains in a single instance to his positive knowledge. The item recently appearing stating that such had been the case was printed in good faith, and upon information that was believed reliable.

Get Your Horses Shod.

It has been suggested to The Star that along with some of the early winter activities which were referred to briefly in the editorial columns of Saturday should be included the injunction: "Get your horses shod!" There is no doubt of the wisdom of the suggestion. Not a day passed last week when there was not witnessed the spectacle of horses falling on the icy pavements and unable to rise without assistance. Often blankets and dry straw or hay were requisitioned and then it was only after prolonged effort that the animals were able to rise. Take a look at the horse's feet now, and if they are smooth don't delay in taking the animal to the blacksmith.

SECURES SHOW CAUSE ORDER.

D. & H. Company Granted Preliminary Step to Injunction.

A dispatch from Auburn says: Judge Ray, sitting in federal court in this city, yesterday granted an order to show cause why an order of preliminary injunction should not be issued pursuant to a bill of complaint filed by the Delaware & Hudson Railroad company with the clerk of the United States court for the northern district of New York at Utica. The order was issued by the judge upon application of John E. McLean for the railroad company, after the filing of the bill of complaint.

The order is directed to Dennis B. Lucey and H. Snowden Marshall, United States attorneys and to George C. Paine, Martin Degan and others, representatives of various orders of trainmen. The defendants are directed to appear and show cause on December 9, at Judge Ray's chambers in Norwich, why the injunction should not be granted. United States attorneys here today said that the application for the show cause order is one of the first moves on the part of the railroads to test the constitutionality of the Adamson eight-hour law.

RALLY DAY OBSERVED.

Two Weeks of Special Services Open at United Presbyterian Church.

Yesterday was observed as rally day at the United Presbyterian Sunday school and an interesting special program was rendered and a very successful session held with 181, nearly the full registration, in attendance.

This church has recently enlarged its choir gallery and a chorus choir has been organized under the leadership of Paul Adrian Jackson, a talented young musician, a graduate of the Utica conservatory of music, who recently located in the city. Last evening two weeks of special services were commenced with Mr. Jackson directing the music and rendering solos, which are features of each service. Dr. Smiley delivers a short gospel sermon each evening. The public is cordially invited to attend any and all of these services.

RECEPTION FOR H. A. TUCKER.

Eastern Star to Entertain in Honor of New Assistant Lecturer.

The Order of the Eastern Star will tender a reception Tuesday evening to H. A. Tucker, the newly appointed assistant lecturer of the Fourteenth Eastern Star district. Mrs. Hazeltine Taber of Jeffersonville, the district deputy grand matron of this district, will also be present. The Floral ceremony will be given and there will be a musical program followed by a banquet.

All Master Masons are invited to attend as guests of the Eastern Stars.

Frances Starr In Albany.

Frances Starr, the distinguished actress whom Oneonta is proud in some sort to call her own, will appear at Harmanus Bleecker hall in Albany, Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee this week in her new play, "The Little Lady in Blue." The play is by Horace Hodges and T. Wigney Percyval, who were the authors of "Grumpy," in which Cyril Maude gained great favor; and of "Sunday," a play in which Ethel Barrymore was starred. "Little Lady in Blue" has its scenes laid in England in 1830, and is said to present Miss Starr in a role admirably suited to her personality, youth and talent.

That Y. M. C. A. Campaign.

The total increase in membership in R. R. Y. M. C. A's the country over to Friday night last after four days of campaigning was 14,875. In Oneonta to and including Saturday, 11 new members have been added and on the D. & H. system 23. After today's work the members of the committee here will meet at 6 o'clock at the Association building for dinner and to talk over the further work.

STRAND THEATRE TODAY.

Charming Jane Grey in "Man and His Angel."

The feature on the program at the Strand theatre today will be charming Jane Grey in a five reel drama, "Man and His Angel," which tells a powerfully appealing story of a girl who befriends a man of evil nature only to face the loss of her future happiness through his ingratitude.

Two other exceptional reels complete this out of the ordinary program.

Admission 10 cents, children under 12, five cents at matinees when accompanied by parents. Matinee 2-17. Evening performances, 7:15 and 9.

"The Princess Pat."

One of the largest advance sales ever recorded at the box office of the Oneonta theatre is the record held by "The Princess Pat" company which comes to this theatre on Wednesday evening, following its distinct triumph at the Cort theatre, New York, last season. With two or three exceptions the complete original cast will be seen. There is so much charm about the "Princess Pat" that its wonderful vogue is not to be wondered at. Victor Herbert's music is always delightful and when that gifted and altogether popular composer collaborates with Henry Blossom in the construction of an operetta the result has always been a triumph. Secure your seats now and avoid disappointment.

MARRIAGES.

Slade-Nickerson.

Frank A. Slade, the well known D. & H. conductor, and Mrs. Jennie M. Nickerson were united in marriage Saturday evening at the Methodist Episcopal parsonage by Dr. T. F. Hall, the couple being attended by Mrs. Timothy Poole, a sister of the bride, and by Raymond Jewell, a brother of the bride. The bride was attired in green taffeta silk. The wedding dinner was served at the residence of the groom's mother at 3 Mitchell avenue, at which the near relatives and a few intimate friends of the contracting parties were guests. Mr. and Mrs. Slade will reside at 3 Mitchell avenue. They will have the best wishes of numerous friends.

Funeral of Mrs. Irish.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Irish, mother of Mrs. Oren C. Tarbox, was held from the Tarbox residence Saturday at 2 o'clock and was largely attended by friends of the family. Rev. Dr. Pendleton of the Free Baptist church conducted the services. He spoke feelingly and consolingly from the words "I waited patiently for the Lord," referring to the life of the deceased and how appropriate this passage is to her late years. He read the poem "Beyond," which her late husband selected to be read at his funeral and also a second one, "Mother," which Mrs. Irish had clipped from her home paper but a few weeks before her death which fittingly expressed her sphere and the resignation with which she approached the river. There were many pretty floral pieces, among these especially appreciated by the family being one from the West End mission, one from the ladies of the Free Baptist church and the Loyal Helpers class of that church of which the deceased was member. Messrs. A. E. Ceperley, Harry Webb, J. O. Champlin and O. A. Miller acted as bearers. Mr. and Mrs. Tarbox departed with the body on the 4:15 p. m. train for Lewiston, Maine, where it was expected interment would be made in the family plot Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Funeral of Mrs. Henry Young.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Henry Young was held Saturday afternoon at her late home on Ford avenue. The services were conducted by Rev. L. C. Nichols of the Chapin Memorial church and C. W. Tillinghast, representing the First Church of Christ, Scientist, who read impressive selections from the rituals. There was a large attendance and a profusion of floral tributes spoke the love and sympathy of many friends.

Interment was in the family plot at Glenwood. The bearers were George W. Watts, Burton Ackley, Henry Webb, M. G. Keenan and S. E. Yager, the last two sons-in-law of the deceased.

Among those present from out of the city were: Mrs. William J. Burdick and Miss Burdick of Binghamton, Mrs. Sarah A. Lawyer, Mrs. Anna M. Simmons, Mrs. Louise Borst, Mrs. Frances LaFevre and Miss Harriet Davis of Cobleskill.

Funeral of William Koury.

The funeral of William, the 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Koury of 8 Grace place, was held at the house on Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The service of the Episcopal church was read by Rev. Granville Rathbun in the presence of a large number of members of the Greek church residing in this city. Interment was in the cemetery at the Plains.

Alfred Smith Pleasantly Surprised.

A very pleasant surprise party was given Alfred Smith at his home on the Pony farm Saturday evening, it being his twenty-sixth birthday. It was also the twenty-sixth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. William McCall, who were guests at the birthday party. They were surprised by the gift of a beautiful silver gravy ladle. After lunch was served Mr. Smith was presented with an envelope of silver in token of the friendship and esteem in which he is held. The guests departed wishing many happy returns of the day both to Mr. and Mrs. McCall and Mr. Smith.

THE ICEBERG PERIL

How Vessels on the Atlantic Are Warned of Danger.

WORK OF THE PATROL FLEET.

These Cutters, Under International Compact, Scour the Ice Zone Each Spring and Notify the World of Conditions In the Infested Area.

After the loss of the giant White Star liner Titanic in April, 1912, by striking an iceberg there was much discussion in Europe and America as to the possibility of adopting measures to lessen the likelihood of such disasters in future. An "international conference for the saving of life at sea," which was held at London, resulted, among other things, in an undertaking by the principal marine powers of the world to maintain an ice patrol on the north Atlantic from February to June in each year.

It was agreed that this ice patrol should be carried out by the United States on behalf of the various countries represented, the cost to be borne by them pro rata. Britain to pay 23 per cent of the total; Germany, France and the United States 15 per cent each and Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Italy, Holland, Norway, Russi and Sweden from 4 to 2 per cent each.

The American authorities inaugurated this patrol service with the naval scout cruisers Birmingham and Chester, but later assigned the revenue cutters Seneca and Miami to this duty, which ships have since continued it. The first season St. John's was chosen for the work, but ultimately it was found more convenient to utilize Halifax, Nova Scotia, because the area patrolled was south of St. John's and extended farther south as the season advanced and the armadas of icebergs became more numerous.

Each cutter patrols the ice region for fifteen days. It is a three day run from Halifax to the ice zone, with a return voyage of about the same duration. The ships arrange their movements by wireless communication, so that the service is absolutely continuous. Daily bulletins of the floes and bergs seen and of the trend of the fog infested areas are furnished by wireless to the hydrographic offices in the capitals of the countries contributing to the upkeep of this service, and warnings are also sent by wireless telegraph to all steamers plying in the berg strewn sections.

Each season the patrol ships are adding to the stock of knowledge regarding the ice area, and the results of their investigations are published in the official records; but, as is too often the case, the world gets to know very little of them. Among some of the conclusions reached is that under ordinary conditions it is possible to see an iceberg twelve to fifteen miles from the ship's bridge, about an extra mile from the crow's nest, and still another mile from the signal yard on the foremast.

In especially clear weather bergs may be seen from eighteen to twenty miles, but on a cloudy day, with good visibility, a deduction of about two miles must be made. With the searchlight it is possible to see an iceberg about two miles on a dimly moonlit night and about three miles when the moon sets.

Another weighty fact for mariners is that it is possible for lookouts on very large ships to be higher than the top of a small berg, so that on a dark night these observers would have an unbroken view of the horizon over the top of a "growler," or low lying berg, half a mile or a mile away, and thus easily miss seeing the obstruction until too late to avoid it.

A theory exploded by the ice patrol ships is that the proximity of ice is marked by a notable lowering of air temperature. Experiments covering three years have proved that such is not the case and that, as a rule, there is little or no change in the temperature of the air near an iceberg. Equally fallacious is the idea that the presence of a berg is denoted by a lowering of the temperature of the water. As a matter of fact, the very contrary is the case.

Other theories, as that echoes indicate the presence of bergs, that ice discloses itself through what is known as the "ice blink" and that submarine "ears" on ships will reveal the nearness of ice by its peculiar motion through the waves, have been proved equally unfounded. In truth, the testimony of the commanders of these patrol ships is that the only safe way to navigate regions of icebergs is to stop during thick weather and to run very slowly on dark nights.

The outstanding fact, therefore, with regard to this ice patrol service is that it is markedly effective in lessening the danger to ships traversing the ice zone by the warnings which it sends out from day to day, which enable passing vessels to give a wide berth to these obstructions. But the problem of detecting ice in the immediate vicinity of a steamer has not yet been satisfactorily solved.—P. T. McGrath in American Review of Reviews.

Coon Meat.

Coon meat looks and tastes something like guinea fowl, being dark and tough unless fixed up right. A coon is more dainty and precise than a possum about what it eats. A possum, like a hog, will eat anything, any sort of carcass.

CUNNING OF A FOX.

It Finally Fooled a Hunter and Saved His Own Red Skin.

One dark, foggy morning in autumn, writes a Youth's Companion correspondent, I was hunting in one of our western states. I saw a large red fox come down a low hill. He did not see me, and when he was about fifty feet away I fired. To my disgust I apparently missed him, and I immediately let go the other barrel. Down he went, and after a few wild kicks and struggles lay very still. I was about to reload when I noticed that one of the cartridges was very light. Instantly I remembered. I had loaded five blue shells with a new brand of powder, but having no more shot I had put them aside. In some way they had been mixed in with the others. To my surprise both the empty shells that I drew from the gun were also blue.

I looked at the shells and then at the fox, and my amazement grew. I could see why my first shot had missed, but not why the second had proved effective, for I was positive that both cartridges contained only powder. I went over to the fox and turned him over with the end of the gun. He seemed as limp as a rag. What nerve he must have to lie there so quietly while I rolled him about! It seemed impossible that he could be pretending.

I took a circuit to the left and hid behind a stump, where I could watch him. Five minutes I waited, but there was no sign of life; then five more minutes, and I decided that he was really dead. But as I was rising to my feet I noticed that his head was slowly moving, turning in the direction that I had taken. The next minute the clever animal was on his feet. He saw me as I raised my gun and sprang behind a log. From the log he reached the shelter of some rocks, and I saw him no more, which in truth pleased me more than it disappointed me.

A SURPRISED HUSBAND.

Romance of Lady March and the Second Duke of Richmond.

One of the mercenary marriages once common in England which turned out happily was that of the second Duke of Richmond. He was married to Lady Sarah Cadogan as part of an agreement that her father's gambling debts should be canceled, Lord March (as he then was) being eighteen and the bride only thirteen.

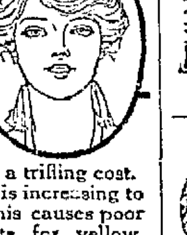

Immediately after the wedding Lord March's tutor took him off to the continent for the grand tour, and Lady Sarah went back to her nursery. This is the sequel as told by Lady Russell in "The Rose Goddess:"

"Three years elapsed. Lord March returned from his travels, but, having such an uninteresting recollection of his bride, was in no hurry to claim her and went the first evening of his return to London to the opera. There he noticed that all eyes—and lorgnettes—were directed to one box, where, surrounded by several persons, sat a most beautiful young creature.

"Turning to a man beside him, he asked who she was. 'You must be a stranger in London,' was the answer, 'not to know the reigning toast of the town, the beautiful Lady March!'

"Lord March lost no time in going to the box and introducing himself to his bride, with whom he ever after lived so affectionately that their devotion to one another became proverbial."

A Clear Complexion

Most every woman wants a nice, clear complexion, and can have it at a trifling cost.

Constipation in women is increasing to an alarming extent, and this causes poor circulation which accounts for yellow, muddy, pimply complexions which so many women are trying to overcome.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

is the one dependable remedy for bad complexions. They act on the liver and bowels like calomel, yet have no dangerous after-effect. They assist nature to throw off the impurities that get into the blood. They will surely clear up, even the most distressing condition quickly and tone up the entire system, giving a pure, fresh, ruddy skin. They are absolutely pure—easy to take and correct constipation. They act quickly, cleanse and purify—and make you feel fine. Start treatment now. Get a box from any druggist—10c and 25c.

JUDGE DENIES MOTION.

Court Refuses to Reopen Judgment in Case of Miller vs. Brown.

Judge McCann has recently handed down a decision denying the application made in behalf of the defendant to reopen the judgment secured in the action of Sabra K. Miller against S. M. Brown in 1913. It appears that the defendant some time prior to that year had erected an encroachment upon the lands of the plaintiff at Hartwick adjoining his property. The judgment after it had been entered was paid by defendant's attorney and some time later defendant took a deed from the plaintiff which embraced in addition to the land encroached upon a second strip of land. This was done through an attorney and the sum of $225 paid therefor. The motion to reopen was made upon the claim that the defendant after the death of his attorney, the late A. R. Gibbs, was first requested to substitute another atorney. The court holds that the defendant in accepting the deed and paying for the property accepted the judgment as valid. Gibbs, Holmes, Waterman & Holmes appeared for the defendant and for the motion and A. L. Kellogg for the plaintiff opposed to reopening.

Jurors for County Court.

At Cooperstown on Friday last the following panel of trial jurors was drawn for the term of county court which convenes at the court house in that village on Monday, December 4:

Laurens — Elmer Field, Frank Couse, Charles Matteson.

Maryland—Morell Grant.

Middlefield — Lynn Stiles, Clyde Blencoe, Harry North.

New Lisbon—John Young, Frank L. Mills, H. S. Lasher.

Oneonta—Alton C. Jenks, Stephen Ottaway.

Otego—Benjamin F. Shepherd.

Otsego—Charles E. House, Dewitt C. Ludwig.

Pittsfield — J. Fred Chase, Albert Chase, Hendrick Matteson.

Plainfield—H. H. Babcock.

Richfield—Frank Jerdan.

Roseboom — Wellington Eating, Henry Chase.

Springfield—Hiram Brown.

Unadilla — M. S. Cone.

Westford—George Roberts, William H. Roberts.

Worcester—Edgar Hill.

Judgment in Rogers Case Affirmed.

In the case of Samuel and Lucy Rogers against James J. Beard jr., to recover $700, which was appealed from the Otsego county term of supreme court from a judgment of said trial term overruling the demurrer to complaint, judgment has been affirmed by the appellate court. E. W. Lockwood, with Carlton E. Robbins, esqrs., as counsel for the plaintiffs. Edson A. Hayward esq. with Hon. W. H. Johnson for the defendant.

PAST TRAILS MAN REFORMED BY LOVE

Blackmailed by Underworld Denizen He Fled With Funds.

HIS WIFE REMAINS LOYAL

He Tried to Make Good and Did. Until, Fearing Revelation of His Past Record, He Was Again Tempted—Judge Is Reluctantly Forced to Inflict Prison Sentence.

Only one man in Pittsburgh knew that Daniel Levy had not always "gone straight." To his employers, the Mahrum Aluminum corporation, he was one of their best salesmen, a man who after he went there from New York cleared $1,000 a month on stock transactions in their behalf. To his wife he was a kind and gentle husband, to whom still clung some of the glamour of the honeymoon which had begun in September of 1915, when she left the offices of Daniel Frohman in New York to marry him.

But one day there drifted into Daniel Levy's offices a shabby, shifty eyed person who hailed Levy by a nickname which made him glance fearfully at the door. The man who was trying to go straight knew his visitor. One does not forget the faces of those who have lived in his cell block. He gave the stranger $20 and a ticket to Chicago.

Letters Demand Money.

Then in a few days letters began to come, letters demanding money and threatening exposure. How long the extortion might have gone on nobody knows, but at last an official of the Mahrum Aluminum company opened one of the threatening letters by mistake, and Levy fled.

He had in his possession the proceeds of 650 shares of stock, which he had just sold. These bought him an automobile and took him as far as Pittsfield, Mass. There he was arrested and brought back to face trial for embezzlement and—a more bitter ordeal—his wife.

But the woman from whom he had kept the sordid story of his past, did not cry when she learned what had happened. She did not even weep when she stood before Judge Marshall Brown recently and begged for her husband. The rings which she had once worn were stripped from her slender fingers. Her savings, too, had gone to pay back what her husband had taken. She had sold everything she owned to buy him free.

Record Convicts Him.

But even in the court, with the unhappy story all told, it was the Daniel Levy who had been, who reached out and dragged back to prison the Daniel Levy who wanted to "go straight." If this had been his first offense, Judge Brown explained, it would have been possible to parole him, but behind the man who stood before him were seventeen black years which he had served in New York, Oregon and Maryland. So Levy went back to prison again for a year. And outside the prison walls his wife will wait for him—the wife for whom he tried to go straight.

A CONVINCING ARGUMENT.

Yet It Was Not What Was Said, but the Way It Was Said.

In an article about Charles M. Schwab in the American Magazine the writer says:

"Several years ago, in the midst of the development of his Bethlehem Steel company, Mr Schwab found it important to sell some notes. So he went to a financier. With his customary enthusiasm the magnate sketched the happy condition of the steel industry and the bigger things just around the corner. So well did he present his case that the light of Bethlehem's furnaces might have been borrowed from the rainbow.

"'Why, there won't be any trouble selling these notes,' said the financier. And the steel man went happily back to his New York office. A little later he was called to the telephone.

"'Mr Schwab'—it was the financier speaking—'would you mind dictating in a letter just what you said to me?'

"So the steel magnate dictated a letter and took it over to him.

"'Why, Mr Schwab, that isn't the same thing at all,' said the man of money.

"'Yes, it is,' protested Bethlehem's president.

"They went over the letter together, and the financier was forced to admit that it contained exactly what Mr. Schwab had said.

"'Well,' he said, 'you're right, but I can't sell those notes unless you dictate that talk into a phonograph.'"

Gore In Mexican Sport.

The Mexican poon with Spanish blood in his veins is nearly always fond of the sight of gore. At a Mexican cockpit the betting is faster and more furious than the ton at a three ring circus, and the enthusiasm is about as great when the steel spurred cocks cut one another to pieces as when a mad bull gores a horse to death in the bull ring.—National Geographic Magazine.

Modernly Defined.

"Father," said the small boy, "what's an explorer?"

"An explorer, my son, is a man who discovers some place that a lady wants to go to and that he won't be able to find anyhow."—Washington Star.

Modesty.

Mamie—Was she modest on her birthday? Edith—I should say so. She didn't put half as many candles on the cake as there should be.—Boston Globe.

SHILOH CORNERSTONE LAID.

$50,000 Monument to Confederates to Be Erected on the Battlefield.

The cornerstone of the $50,000 Confederate monument that the United Daughters of the Confederacy are to erect on the battlefield of Shiloh has just been laid at Pittsburg Landing, Tenn., under the auspices of the Adamsville lodge of Masons, the grand master of Tennessee, Charles Barham, officiating. Masonic lodges of western Tennessee, north Alabama and north Mississippi assisted in the ceremony.

The monument will stand near the old Shiloh meeting house in the angle made by the intersection of the Corinth-Pittsburg Landing and Hamburg-Savannah roads. It will face in the direction from which the Confederate forces advanced to the attack in the early morning of April 6, 1862.

When completed the monument will represent years of patient work on the part of the Daughters of the Confederacy in raising the money. Though the battle of Shiloh, fought April 6-7, 1862, was one of the most important of the war, the national military park there contains but three monuments to commemorate the part played by southern troops in the battle. The monument now under construction will be the most imposing in the park. It is being constructed of Mount Airy (N. C.) granite. In the center rises a bronze group, the subject of which is "Victory Defeated by Death." Under the figures set in the granite is a bas-relief of General Albert Sidney Johnston, the Confederate commander, killed there. At either end of the granite monument is a group of soldiers.

Frederick C. Hibbard of Chicago designed the memorial.

Roumanian Titles.

Roumanian traditions are democratic in that the language ignores titles of nobility. In Roumania the title of his or her "highness" or "his excellency" is given only to the foreigner. The national idiom knows only one appellation of this kind, "thy grandeur," "Matria ta," and this is reserved for the sovereign. The men call each other "brother" even in moments of anger. "Marquis" and "countess" are two expressions which have in Roumania a significance intended to wound. A "little prince" is a clown. The most astonishing thing is that the word "king" in ordinary usage is far from complimentary. In Roumanian a scoundrel will be "a king of the old court," and miserable wretch may be "a king and a half," "the last of the bandits," "a king to be hanged." This aversion is for the word, not for the king, for Roumania from a principality became a kingdom, yet the feeling is such that in the Roumanian translation of the Bible the "Book of Kings" has become the "Book of the Emperors."—Indianapolis News.

Attended Delphic Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Morris arrived home Sunday evening after a few days' stay in New York city. While there Mr. Morris attended a reunion and dinner of the members of the Delphic fraternity held Friday evening at the Fifth Avenue restaurant, near the corner of Broadway and Twenty-Third street. About 75 members of the old time fraternity when Normal schools attracted more young men—all of whom were former students here, were in attendance and the occasion was most enjoyable.

EVEN CROSS, SICK CHILDREN LOVE SYRUP OF FIGS

If feverish, bilious, constipated, give fruit laxative at once.

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, breath bad, full of cold, breath bad, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomachache, or indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

Since 1832

In the old, old days mother would lift you out of bed those cold mornings, wrap you in her shawl, carry you down to the warm kitchen and sit you in front of the glowing range.

And, while the good old-fashioned breakfast was cooking, and the good old-fashioned fire crackled, what was the name you spelled out on the oven door?

"S-T-E-W-A-R-T," of course.

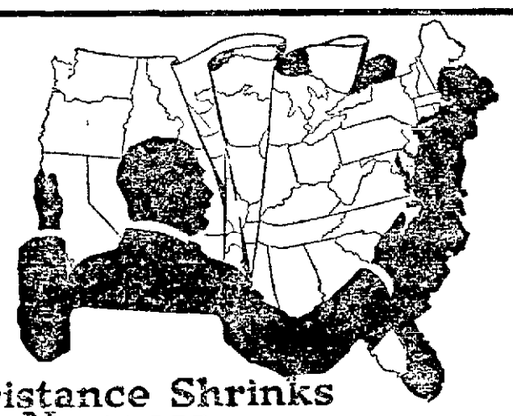

For eighty-four years the Stewart product has led in efficiency and durability. See the up-to-the-minute models at any of the dealers mentioned below; learn how they take away much of the drudgery and expense of kitchen work by saving fuel, time and labor. Made by
